THEY DID VERY GOOD WORK.

Wants County's Belongings to Frankfort Secure a Reduction of Assessment.

Colonel W. B. Baldwin, one of the committee appointed by Judge Platter to appear before the State Board of Equalization at Frankfort and advocate a reduction of the increased assessment placed upon Mason county land and property by the State Board, came home yesterday.

The committee, consisting of Judge Platter, Colonel W. B. Baldwin, W. W. Ball, John C. Evans and J. Harvey Rice, made such a strong presentation of the case that the Board reduced the increased assessment from 15 per cent to 10 per cent, thus saving about $4,000 to the taxpayers.

The State Board has established as a basis of assessment throughout the state a valuation of 70 per cent. of the real value of all property, which, all things considered, is a very high rate for a state whose only public improvement in years has been the building of a branch post-office.

The "Society of the Lost Legion" will take great pleasure in printing the name of the first young lady that ornaments her desk with a much needed pin-cushion.

In the Criminal Court in Cincinnati W. J. Bennett, alias Mulca, the bank robber, was dismissed. He made an attempt to rob the bank but did not succeed.

He was found in the paying office in a clasp, and when apprehended pretended to be in search of his dog. After a hard fight he was overpowered and taken to jail, where Detective Will Hazen of Cincinnati identified him as a notorious criminal. Bennett was dismissed because the grand jury had failed to indict him. He was not released, however. He is still in jail, awaiting the arrival of Mr. Hazen, who has procured requisition papers, and will take him to Pennsylvania for a job there.

John Keller, aged fifty-eight, died in Louisville from consumption, the result of a wound he received during the late war. The man was a member of the Twentieth Kentucky, and had served throughout the war. He had drawn a pension, which, from March 6th, 1889, had been increased to $24 a month. While at the front during the war he was struck by a minie ball, which took effect in the lungs. It had always been a cause of complaint, and finally produced consumption, from which he died.

While the groom lay upon his deathbed Miss Anna Yenton and J. B. Ferman were united in marriage at Louisville. Mr. Ferman has been ill for the past month, and his physicians say he can survive but a short while longer. Though death is hourly expected, the ceremony was performed, the bride sitting on the arm of the dying groom, holding the sick man's hand. Ferman is a prosperous young merchant of Louisville.

August Geist, a stone mason, thirty years of age, committed suicide in the jail at Newport. He had been dealing with Harry Rush and ran up a board bill covering five or six weeks. When pay was asked he abused Rush and the latter laid him arrested. In the jail Geist got possession of a small strap which he attached to the lock of his cell, and fixing the loop about his neck, he sat down on the floor and strangled to death. He was drunk at the time, and seemed to be stricken with a horror of the stone pile, where he feared he would be sent, and it was this circumstance apparently that impelled him to self murder.

A Mayville gentleman, who was a passenger on the C. and O. Westbound Express, which was delayed a several hours yesterday by the falling of a bridge near Huntington, had an opportunity to show his gallantry, and right handsomely did he do it.

When the train reached a small station on the Virginia mountain, the Conductor informed those in the sleeper that the train could proceed no further and that they would have to go to a hotel, as the train would return to Washington City. All of the passengers obeyed, except the gentleman mentioned, and a lady of this county and her child, who remained at his dictation. The child was suffering from whooping cough and so taken into the arms of the woman, who had been a heartless cruel act. The rest of the train and all of the railroad officials at command were brought into action and begged, entreated and threatened, but all to no purpose. The gentleman was immovable. The railroad people finally agreed to let the lady and child go on a convenient side track, to be coupled on to the first train coming West. The victor, after seeing that the lady and child were comfortably fixed for the night, the cold and rain having no terrors for him, retired to the hotel as master of the situation.

A STUDENT'S TORMENT.

What "Neophytes" Must Undergo Before Admission to a Society.

From the time the Harvard student begins "running" to the time that he receives final initiation into his college society he is not supposed to wash, shave or comb his hair, says an exchange. He wears the oldest flannel shirt he owns, no necktie and has his trousers turned up at the bottom. He is obliged to do whatever he is ordered by any member of the society, each "neophyte" being the special slave of two other members. The regulation requires, in addition to the foregoing, that one, or more, of the members, at some unearthy hour of the morning, and to sell newspapers and black shoes on the street. The candidate is required to ride a child's velocipede decked out with feather plumes and a many-colored coat; to chase horses and, and then placing his foot on the stirrup, to slip the shoeing to the disgust of the conductor and the occupants of the car; to take his bed apart every night, carry it out into the yard, and then put it back again; to go into the store and violently berate storekeepers; to rise during a play at the theater and object to the acting, only to be forcibly ejected from the house; to write ridiculous things about himself and send them to the papers for publication; to kiss every one he meets, to rub his hat and smile at every one he passes; to act as valet, coachman or footman to his tormentors.

TOOK HIM UP.

Salvation Army Girls Who Were Prepared for Emergencies.

Two ladies from the Salvation Army strolled rather than marched up Broadway the other night, carrying their bundles of the War Cry, asking every one they passed to buy, says the New York Morning Advertiser. The theater performances were just over and the streets thronged. Many were the rebuffs received, but they took it in good part and responded with a cordial. "May the Lord bless you!" At last the twins approached a crowd in front of a cafe near the Bijou theater. "Excuse us, please," said a stout, red-faced porter, whose features are always to be seen on the billboards. "All I've got is a twenty-dollar bill. Lord bless you, sir, we can change it." Said the meek little woman: "I have a quarter, sir." The soldier-girl handed over a paper and reached down in her soubotter purse for her purse. The purse was a great bag. She slowly counted out nine silver dollars, a dozen half dollars, and then quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies without end. The red-faced porter was no handiwork when when she of a woman like the change that he could make. "May the Lord bless you, sir," said the demure woman as she moved away. "That there was a quarter in her eye and a quiver around her mouth that made the crowd laugh heartily. The Salvation Army girl had caught the sports' bluff.

OVABHERO WOMEN.

Feudalities of the Female Hotentots and Their Love of the Knife.

Among the inhabitants of the German dominions of south-west Africa are the Hotentots, Hattaras, Mountain-Damars, Ovabheros and Ovamas, future supremacy lies undoubtedly in the hands of the Hattaras, the offspring of white men and native women, who are at the present day far in the ascendency. The various tribes are always at war with one another, and the anthropological and ethnographical descriptions pertaining to them are highly interesting. Among the Hotentots the women are the sole mistress of the house, the affairs of which she controls absolutely. Without her permission the husband and children cannot drink a cup of milk, eat a piece of meat. As with civilized nations the Ovabhero woman is a lover of geese. She stands at the head of the tribes of south-west Africa as the prime devotee to the most massive adornments that she can pile on her body. Long chains of iron bands of enormous weight hang from her ears and are wound around her head and ankles as well as the upper arms, while spiral bands of iron do so as bracelets, encircling the wrists like a death and broad cuff. The peculiar adornments of these walking iron mines weighs often more than the whole body of the woman herself.

Cunning of the Seagull.

An example of the cunning of the gulls was observed at Tacoma when several alighted on a bunch of logs that had been in the water for a long time, with the submerged side thick with barnacles. One was a big, gray fellow, who seemed to be the captain. He walked to a particular log, stood on one side of it close to the water, and then uttered peculiar cries. The other gulls came and perched on the same side of the log, looking at the captain as he walked, rolled over several inches. The gulls, step by step, kept the log rolling until the barnacles showed above the surface. The birds picked up the food, and the log was not abandoned until every barnacle had been picked.

What Dreams Mean.

To dream of a millstone around your neck is a sign of what you may expect if you get an extravagant wish. It is a young lady dreams of a coffin in her bosom that she should instantly give up looking her stays tightly and always wear a loose and shabby dress in all weather. To dream of fire is a sign that, if you are wise, you will see that the lights in your house are all safely out before you go to bed. To dream that your nose is red at the tip is a warning that you had better leave off brandy and water.
